The Mormons Again Disaffected.

Collision Between the Judicial Authorities and the Mormons.

The Refusal of the Grand Jury to Perform [illegible] Judge made Upon [illegible] Army of the Governor—Proclamation Declaring the People—Universal Turbulence and Popular Commotion.

From Our Own Correspondent.

PROVO CITY, UTAH TERRITORY, SUNDAY, March 27, 1859.

We have suddenly reached a most important crisis in the affairs of this Territory. The events consummated with the present session of the United States District Court in this city, are fraught with the deepest interest, as they have put an entirely new phase upon the aspect of the Mormon question. It is now [illegible] whether the Judiciary of the Territory are powerless without the assistance of the military, and that [illegible] decisions are strictly within the boundsfor[illegible] established by precedents in the judicial annals of our country, they become mere tools in the hands of an organized confederacy of villains.

It is now to be determined whether the troops now in this Territory are to remain here at an expense of millions of dollars to the nation, merely to act as wooden men—scarecrows—or whether they are to assist in asserting and maintaining the supremacy of the law and of justice among us.

In order that the public and yourself may be fully informed in regard to the condition of affairs now existing here, we shall as briefly as possible give you a connected history of the present session of the United States District Court (Second Judicial District) in this city with the incidents connected therewith.

We informed you, in a former communication, that soon after the adjournment of the United States Court in Great Salt Lake City, Judge CRADLEBAUGH, of this District, had received important information relative to crimes which were committed in his District. We now learn that since then Judge CRADLEBAUGH has satisfied himself beyond a doubt that the massacre of a train of emigrants on their way to California, numbering 140 souls, at the Mountain Meadows, in the Fall of 1857, was committed by leading Mormons, assisted by the Indians, and also that the murders of the two PARRISH (father and son) and PORTER and POMEROY, at Provo; of JOHNS and MCMURDY, at Spanish Fork; of LAIDS, at Lehi; and of others committed in his District, were also perpetrated at the instigation and command of the Church leaders.

There being no jail, or any kind of a prison, or suitable place of confinement in the District, and the Legislature having made no provision of law for keeping and sustaining prisoners, the Judge found himself compelled, from necessity, to make a requisition upon General JOHNSTON for a sufficient detachment of the troops to guard such prisoners as were already or might be arrested. This requisition was promptly complied with, and Company F., of the Tenth Infantry, and a small detachment from the Seventh and Fifth Infantry, numbering altogether seventy men, under command of Captain HENRY HUNT and First Lieutenant N. A. M. DUDLEY, of the Tenth, were placed at his disposal for this purpose.

The United States Marshal rented a school-house in this city, which has on previous occasions been used for the purpose, at the rate of $10 per day for the use of the Court.

On Tuesday morning, the 8th of March, the Court was organized, with a Mormon Clerk and a full Mormon Grand and Petit Juries, and on the same day Captain HUNT arrived with his Company, and encamped on the vacant lot adjoining the Court-house, he having already in his custody some offenders, who had been committed to await their trial at this term of the Court.

The Judge, upon the organization of his Court, delivered a charge to the Grand Jury. Desirous that the Grand Jury should have no possible excuse for avoiding their responsibility in the cases which were to be brought before them, and also to ascertain fully whether it were possible to obtain justice from them, the Judge took the extraordinary precaution of calling most pointedly and decidedly their attention to crimes which have been committed almost within sight of the Court-house door.

The Judge, before the Grand Jury were sworn, discharged one of those summoned on the panel, named WILLIAM J. HAAS, stating to him in open Court, as his reason, that he had an affidavit before him implicating him as one of the principal actors in the murder of PARRISH and PORTER.

Immediately upon the arrival of the company of soldiers, the leading citizens of Provo commenced creating a stir among the populace in regard to their presence in the city. The police force was doubled, as they asserted, to prevent the indignant citizens from attacking the soldiers.

Shortly after arriving here, the Judge called in the Sheriff of the county, and inquired of him if there was any jail or place of confinement in which to keep prisoners. The Sheriff replied that they had "no jail here, but that he thought that the prisoners might be secured in the cellar under the building in which the Court is held." The Judge then inquired if they would be safe there. He replied that "they might be kept there, if there was a sufficient guard put around them."

On Thursday, the 10th inst., after two days' deliberation, the Grand Jury brought in two bills of indictment—one against two Indians, named MOSS and LOOKING GLASS, who were removed from the Third District to this one for trial, on a charge of assault, with intent to commit a rape, on a Danish Mormon girl; the second against a Mormon, for procuring and enticing soldiers to desert.

On the 12th inst., the following correspondence passed between the Mayor and Common Council of Provo and Judge CRADLEBAUGH.

PROVO, March 11, 1859.

To the Hon. John Cradlebaugh, Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States for Utah Territory, and ex-officio Judge of the second Judicial District:

Your memorialists, the Mayor and Council of Provo City, beg leave respectfully to represent that,

Whereas, The City Council have received petitions from the various wards of the city representing that a detachment of the United States troops for several days past have been encamped on the seminary lot, the officers occupying the west lower room of the seminary building [illegible] at the rate of $10 per day for the use of the Court.

Your memorialists respectfully pray your Honor to cause the immediate removal of the troops, now occupying the seminary and vicinity, beyond the limits of the city. And your memorialists as in duty bound will ever pray.

On behalf of the City Council.

B. K. BULLOCK, Mayor.

Judge CRADLEBAUGH replied:

PROVO CITY, March 12, 1859.

To the Honorable the Mayor and City Council of Provo:

GENTLEMEN—Your letter of the 11th inst. has just been received, in reply to it, I take occasion to say that the movement of a company of infantry to this city, and their temporary location here, was well considered before it was determined upon. It was a matter of necessity. There were a number of prisoners to be tried before my Court; neither the Territory nor the city afforded a jail or other place of confinement for them. No manner of provision had been made for their support or subsistence, neither by the Territory nor your city. To secure these prisoners and to maintain them are duties that I owe to my office and to them.

I have adopted the only means left me of accomplishing these objects. The military company, kindly furnished by the commanding General, both secure and support these prisoners. That this small force should be near the Court-house, or the building used as such, is not only a matter of convenience, but of necessity to the Court. This I will say, however; that so soon as I can dispense with their most useful services, I shall do so.

Upon the complaint of their being here to the annoyance of the citizens of this city and intimidation of those persons having business with the District Court.

Whosoever, or to what manner those soldiers have mingled, or interfered with the citizens of Provo, I shall [illegible] from you the above. A memorialist, ordinarily not of timid nature, then have reported themselves with a promptitude and decision truly remarkable.

As to your remark about intimidation, allow me to say that no such disposition either has existed or does exist in the minds of the military.

I am, Gentlemen, your obedient servant,

JOHN CRADLEBAUGH.

On the 14th inst., the City Council sent a rejoinder to the Judge's letter, in which they asserted that they were ready and willing to "secure and safely protect any number of prisoners."

That the lives and liberties of all persons accused are jeopardized by the continuance of citizens and soldiers of forces, under the influence of a military intimidation and submission.

We have been under the necessity of declaring the police forces, and enrolling ourselves to prevent indignant citizens from doing violence to the soldiers."

They also asserted most falsely that the soldiers had been disorderly, and then continued in a strain of high-blown strain of indignation, of which the following passage is a fair specimen:

"Your Honor says that 'good American citizens have no cause to fear American troops.' The gallantry of our officers, the discipline and bravery of our soldiers, have rendered our armies a terror to the enemies of liberty throughout the world; but when, through prejudice, political intrigue, speculative enthusiasm, or other causes, these gallant armies are placed in a position to intimidate a portion of citizens, why should they not fear?"

Honored Sir, when our gallant army, or any portion thereof, is degraded by any cause whatever, from that high position which the Constitution and laws have given it, as the arm of national defence, to the low station of supplanting the civil power, it must most certainly be feared by every American citizen, not biased by the perpetuity of our national institutions. As a besieging corps, a single corps, highly honored for its discipline, the superior skill and scientific attainments of its officers, is placed out of its constitutional sphere to perform the duties of sheriff, marshal, or jailor, the military power then supersedes the civil, in a limited degree to be sure, but military power seldom retrogrades and jurors are controlled by them; the Court follows in the wake—that halcyon of human liberty—an independent, high-minded Judiciary, sustained by the people, is thus annihilated—the legislative and executive departments are soon overcome, and the sword of a Julius Cæsar puts an end to the whole fabric of liberty."

The Judge also received a petition, signed by the witnesses on the part of the prosecution, summoned here in the different cases, praying that the troops might be kept here for their protection.

In the mean time, the time of the Court was taken up, during its sessions, with the naturalization of aliens, some eighty or one hundred of whom were admitted to citizenship.

The Judge, on this subject, decided that no one who has borne arms against the United States during the five years next preceding his application could be admitted to citizenship, on the ground that he had not behaved as a man "attached to the principles of the Constitution of the United States, and well disposed to the good order and happiness of the same," and therefore allowed the examination of witnesses on that point.

On the 14th inst., Gov. CUMMING arrived here from Great Salt Lake City, and a few days after he addressed a letter to Gen. JOHNSTON, in which (as we understand), after stating that a detachment of troops are encamped here against the repeated protests of the inhabitants, and that although he had been here several days, Capt. HUNT had not reported officially to him, he requests the General promptly to order the removal of the command from the city. He also adds that he is satisfied that the presence of the military here is unnecessary, and that should he hereafter have reason to believe that they were necessary here, he would promptly take measures to secure their services to act as a posse comitatus.

In reply, Gen. JOHNSTON probably told the Governor that he himself was commander of the army of Utah, and would send his troops where he thought best, and that if Capt. HUNT had reported officially to him as Governor he would have been guilty of gross military impropriety, but we do not know definitely what the reply of the General was. We know only this, that the troops have not been removed, but that, on the contrary, more have been sent to their aid.

Under the laws of the Territory the Grand Jurors are selected by the Clerk of the County Court, (the County Commissioners are here styled the County Court,) and on Wednesday, the 16th inst., the Grand Jury still failing to report, although some ten witnesses had been examined, and the Judge being fully satisfied from the composition of the Jury that the Commissioners had designedly placed upon the panel the very persons engaged in the commission of these murders with their relatives and friends, in order to prevent any bills from being reported, he commenced the examination of the witnesses in the Parrish case himself, acting in his capacity as a committing magistrate, and upon the evidence adduced issued warrants for the arrest of a number of persons implicated.

On the day following, —— MCDONALD, who was Mayor at the time of the murder, and —— DALBY, a policeman, and KEARNS, the Marshal of Springville were arrested and put under guard.

On the 18th, KIMBALL BULLOCK, the Mayor of this city was arrested, but the next day, upon further examination, was released.

In the meantime the demonstrations of the people against the soldiers became so positive that Capt. HUNT fearing that an attempt would be made to rescue the prisoners in his hands from him—sent to Gen. JOHNSTON for assistance—whereupon on the 19th inst., a force consisting of eight companies of Infantry (three from the Tenth and five from the Seventh,) with one section of artillery and one company of dragoons were sent under the command of Brevet-Major G. R. PAUL, of the Seventh, and encamped on the Provo River, about 6 miles above the city. They have since moved and encamped within four miles of the city so as to be ready for any emergency. The soldiers are under the strictest discipline and are not permitted to approach the city—so that they do not in any manner molest the citizens.

Upon continuing the examination of the witnesses LORIN JOHNSON, another member of the Grand Jury, was implicated in the Parrish murder—as also AARON JOHNSON, the Bishop of Springville, and JOSEPH C. SNOW, the President, of the Provo Stake. These men, however, all fled and escaped before the Marshal could arrest them, and it is said have gone into the mountains. The Bishops of Paroosen and Cedar City, near the scene of the Mountain Meadow massacre, have also fled; and, in fact, you can now scarcely find a leading Bishop, teacher or other prominent churchman in the southern settlements—they have all secreted themselves.

On Monday, the 21st inst., the Grand Jury not having examined a single witness since the preceding Wednesday, and still refusing to make any report whatsoever, were discharged by the Judge, who made to them some very pointed remarks on the occasion.

On the same day, the Mormon who had been indicted for enticing soldiers to desert, was tried and acquitted by the Petit Jury. The Judge then discharged the Petit Jury.

The ensuing morning, the prisoners who were held to answer before the Court, including the two Indians MOSS and LOOKING GLASS, were discharged from the custody of the court, the Judge stating to them that they were not discharged because of any proof of their innocence, and that if they had really committed any offences the probability was that they would yet be punished for them, but that as there seemed to be an effort here to cover up all crimes and offences committed by the Mormons, this Court had determined not to be used by this community for its protection against "Gentiles" and Indians, until a disposition was manifested to punish its own high offenders. And that if the community could not be brought to a proper sense of duty in any other way, the Court would assume the responsibility of turning criminal loose to prey upon criminal,—for the Courts could not be used merely to punish one set of criminals and protect another in the commission of even more flagrant crimes. He moreover told the Indians that they might remain with the soldiers, for protection, until they returned to camp.

The Judge has since then adjourned the Court from day to day, but has been daily engaged in the examination of witnesses in the murder cases.

The evidence adduced is astounding, and will form a dark, dark chapter in our history. We shall be enabled by the next mail to forward you the particulars of this evidence, and you will then perceive the importance of the decisive steps which Judge CRADLEBAUGH has taken.

Without the assistance of the military nothing could have been done. Every single witness who has testified has sought immediately the protection of the troops, and does not dare to leave it. They are in the greatest fear of the "destroying angels," for they have seen their work before. Two more arrests have been made of men who attempted to escape to Salt Lake City; when they reached there, however, their lives were threatened by some who feared that they might be induced to testify, and fearing that the threats would be carried into execution, they sought the protection of Secretary HARTNETT. One of them, named DURFEE, is the man who led the PARRISHES and PORTER out when they were killed; he acknowledges his guilty participation in the crime, and is anxious to become State's evidence.

There are several witnesses now under the protection of the troops, who can identify the devils who led on the parties who massacred and butchered the California emigrants at the Mountain Meadows.

The Salt Lake City the greatest excitement has prevailed in consequence of the movements here. The Mormons are all under arms and have spent last day and night. Expresses run from here there every few hours.

The Governor returned to the city on the 23d inst., and on the night of the 25th a long memorial was presented to him, a copy of which I send with [illegible] to you. It is a tissue of falsehoods from beginning to end.

The Deseret News intersperses in Italics on the 30th, containing copies of the petitions sent to Judge CRADLEBAUGH and of the memorial to the Governor. This shows in fact the misrepresentations. One of the prominent falsehoods is that memorial that the Grand Jury "sent a remonstrance" to the Judge upon their discharge. This is not so, the Judge has never received a single word or line from them.

The following are extracts from this document:

"It has pleased Judge CRADLEBAUGH to set aside, in several instances, the civil authorities, and without the least valid reason known to us, to employ federal troops to execute the orders of the Court, thereby clearly indicating on his part, so far as we can discern, an utter disregard of the latest expressed views and policy of the Administration concerning Utah, and the views and policy of your Excellency and all good citizens, and a settled purpose, for some cause, to force an angry collision between the citizens and troops, which is well known is not so difficult to accomplish in the best ordered town or city in the Union, especially when one class is caused to illegally supplant, insult, and oppress the other.

That the peaceful policy of the Administration and of your Excellency be not subverted by the vile schemes of such cutlers, speculators, camp-followers and gamblers as plot evil and bloodshed for gain; that citizens be not imposed upon in any of their rights, nor when subpœnaed as witnesses, treacherously arrested by bench warrants and urged and without bedding, guarded by troops, nor jurors to attend to their duties under the bristling of bayonets; that the laws be respected and magnified; that the citizens be not goaded until they cannot sustain their anger, and thus forego for a time the happy results of the labors and toils of so many patriots and philanthropists, and cause the nations to exult with joy, and that your Excellency "take care that the laws be faithfully executed;" we, your memorialists, citizens of the United States in the Territory of Utah, respectfully petition your Excellency to use all the influence and authority of your official position as Governor of this Territory to remove all Government troops from in and around the Court now in session in the city of Provo, and from in and around said city, and to prevent any troops being located in or in propinquity near any of our thickly-settled villages, towns and cities, and to fairly and fully, at your earliest convenience, report to the proper department in Washington City, the official proceedings of Judge JOHN CRADLEBAUGH, in the Second Judicial District of this Territory, and for such wise, loyal, and just action by your Excellency, your memorialists and petitioners will ever pray."

We know not what action the Governor will take upon the memorial which has been presented to him, requesting him to remove the troops. We merely know what his former actions have been in pursuance of his factitious peace policy. He has already left the seat of the Executive Department of the Territory to come and endeavor to break up the session of the U. S. Court, by depriving it from all protection or power. In this he has failed signally, and we look with interest for his next movement in support of the Mormon policy.

A difficulty between some Mormons and a detachment of soldiers in Rush Valley, has added fuel to the prevailing excitement. It appears that the Mormons had squatted on the Military Reservation; these Mormons having refused to leave after due notice had been given to them, a squad of men were sent to drive them off. When they reached the place the soldiers were insulted by the Mormons there, and one of them, a young man named STANCOM, drew his revolver and aimed it at the officer in command, when the sergeant of the squad immediately knocked him down with the butt of his rifle, slightly fracturing his skull. An army surgeon was immediately sent for, who dressed the wound, and the youth is now recovering.

The weather still continues very stormy. We have had snow-storms, and very severe ones at that, on an average of two a week the whole month, and on the mountains it has snowed almost incessantly.

The following is a list of the companies and officers in the command under Major PAUL, now camped three miles from here:

Co. B, 10th Infantry—Capt. A. Pleasonton.

ATTEMPTS OF THE AUTHORITIES TO ARREST CRIMINALS—THEY ARE THWARTED BY THE MORMONS—TERRIBLE MASSACRES AT MOUNTAIN MEADOWS—PROCLAMATION OF THE GOVERNOR, WHO IS SERENADED BY THE MORMONS.

PROVO CITY, UTAH TERRITORY, Thursday, March 31, 1859.

The United States Marshal and his deputies have been thwarted in every manner in their attempts to serve the processes of the Court during the past week. They have experienced the greatest difficulty in finding any one for whom they were searching.

In the villages, they can obtain nothing but evasive replies to their inquiries relative to the residence of any one, and but few of the inhabitants seem to know even who their next door neighbor is.

On Monday morning, the 28th inst., Deputy-Marshal BROOKS attempted to arrest GEO. HANCOCK, the Bishop of Payson, but after searching thoroughly his house retired unable to find him. HANCOCK was the principal actor in the murder of JOHNS and his mother. We have now positive information that not only this Bishop of Payson has fled, but also the Bishops of Cedar City and Parowan. JNO. D. LEE and H. HAIGHT, who were deeply implicated in the Mountain Meadow massacre, AARON JOHNSON, Bishop of Springville, who directed the murder of the PARRISHES, PORTER and FORBES; BLACKBURN, Bishop of Provo, and WM. SNOW, President of the Provo Stake, accessories to these and other crimes, and —— EVANS, Bishop of Lehi, concerned in the murder of JACOB LAMB, have all made their escape to parts unknown.

Four of the persons who sat on the Grand Jury lately discharged by Judge CRADLEBAUGH, have been deeply implicated by the evidence adduced before the Judge, and have fled: as also the father-in-law of another of the Grand Jurors. But few of the others have called for their pay, and are not to be seen. This forms a most striking illustration of the working of the law passed by the Legislature at its last session, and signed by Governor CUMMING, which prescribes that the juries for the United States District Courts shall be selected by the County Courts. In this case the County Commissioners, who constitute the County Court, being all men of high standing in the Mormon Church, and appointed by BRIGHAM YOUNG, thought that they would prevent an investigation into the crimes committed under the direction of the Church, by taking the "bull by the horns," and placed upon the juries the very criminals themselves, together with their relatives, friends and accomplices. At the time the Grand Jury were sworn in, the Judge had to dismiss one of them, on the ground that he had an affidavit already filed before him implicating him in the Parrish murder.

The prisoners now in custody cannot procure a single witness for the defense. Every person who knew the least thing concerning the crimes under investigation have either fled under a consciousness of guilt, or have been compelled to leave by the church authorities. The following statement made under oath by one of the prisoners implicated in the Parrish murder will fully illustrate by whom witnesses and others are "intimidated."

DURFEE, his companion, who joined him in seeking the protection of Secretary HARTNETT, it will be found by the history of the PARRISH murder, which I herewith inclose, was one of the chief executioners of the Church, but he preferred to risk his neck in the halter, which the law now holds over him, than to the dreadful tortures and butcheries prescribed by the Mormon Church, which he himself had assisted in inflicting on others.

GEORGE HARMSTONEAY, after giving his testimony in regard to the murder of the PARRISHES, says:

"It all passed off well enough until two weeks ago, the second time that Marshal DODSON came to summons me as a witness; then ANDREW NELES and SANDFORD FOLLES came to me and told me I must go off into the mountains and join WILLIAM J. HAAS and [illegible] DURFEE, whom they told the same thing in Lincoln Canon. HAAS, if then proven by testimony not to be one of the murderers; I [illegible] out immediately that night from the peace [illegible] there I, then was ("Mormon") followed by two of the men who were then there, and went by the mountain, towards the north, intending, fearing, however, that they might be some one to put me out of the way. I refused to go with them, and they shortly [illegible] I then turned and went in another direction about half [illegible] Rock Canon, where I remained [illegible] that night, with nothing to eat, and exposed to the storm which raged that day; Sunday night I returned to Provo, and, without going home, went to HARRIS CHRISTENSEN. Here I was again notified that I must go to Grass Dennis and Rash, were or abide the consequences. This notice was given me by WM. PEMBERTON, Marshal of Springville. CARVER and ALEXANDER MCKENZIE were sent to go with me, and in the evening we went out and found DURFEE and RASH a little way up Hobble Creek, hiding among the willows. We had scarcely got there when WM. RUSH and URIAH CURTIS came to us on horseback with an express telling us we must start immediately for Salt Lake City. They would not tell us who the message was from, but said it was "counsel" that we should go to the city, and also charged us particularly that we should keep along the mountains and not allow ourselves to be seen by any living being, but must travel at night and remain hid in the daytime. I objected to this, as we were two days' journey to the city, and traveling along the mountains that night, camped for the day early the next morning between Provo Canon and Battle Creek. The next night we crossed over the mountains of the Traverse Range instead of going round through the Jordan Canon, and the next morning camped near Dry Creek, in Salt Lake Valley. We remained here until the next night, when we started to get very near the city, and wished to travel on, but RASH and I opposed it because we had been forbidden to travel by day, but as he persisted in going on we finally consented to go also. Then, instead of avoiding the roads, as we had been "counselled" to keep out of sight of men, RASH took a straight course down the road leading to the town of Cottonwood. When he got within a half mile of this town he stopped and cocked his pistol round in front of him, and then wanted us to go up in the willows on the creek above the fort, and wait there until night. These circumstances aroused our suspicions in regard to his intentions, and we believed that there was a plan laid to kill us there. We would not, therefore, go with him, but made him go on with us.

When I got opposite the Fort, I stopped and asked them whether they intended to kill and murder me, as they had done others and told them that I believed that that was their intention. They both denied it positively, and RASH said I must be going crazy. About a mile beyond Cottonwood Fort 5 men passed [illegible] at full speed on horseback; he rode awful hard until he got out of sight. DURFEE and I very believed that that man was one of a party concealed on the creek to KILL us, and that EARL wanted to lead us to them."

He then relates other circumstances occurring on the road, which continued so to excite their suspicions against EARL that, when they reached the city, they took the first opportunity to slip away, and ran to the "Gentile" store of Messrs. LIVINGSTON, KINKEAD & Co., and asked for protection. They were placed under the protection of Secretary HARTNETT until the Marshal arrived and took them in custody. During the time which they remained at the Secretary's they were not confined at all, but they would not leave the room in which they were placed—not even to go to meals.

By recent advices from the Southern settlements we are informed that the towns in the vicinity of the scene of the terrible massacre at Mountain Meadows are almost depopulated. In Cedar City, a town of between 800 and 900 inhabitants there are but twelve or thirteen families left. The men have all fled in consequence of the news which had reached them of the decisive action of the United States Court in this city.

The Indians under the leadership of the Mormon Chief CAMERON are collecting in the neighborhood of the Mountain Meadows, and are already 1,000 strong. CAMERON has been joined by two of the Southern tribes, and his force is increasing daily. He expresses his determination to resist to the death all attempts to arrest any one in that vicinity. We are also informed that there are several white men with him.

On the morning of Tuesday, the 29th day of March, Marshal DODSON having received information which led him to suspect that certain offenders against [illegible] in his possession were [illegible] morning with the troops.

The company of dragoons were commanded by Lieutenants GORDON and LIVINGSTON, of the Second Dragoons, and accompanied by Lieutenant HEATH, of the Tenth Infantry.

Previous to the departure of the main body a small party was detached, who proceeded rapidly in advance and stationed themselves at a point where they could intercept any messenger who might be sent to give notice of their approach. As the party, however, left most secretly and silently, in the midst of a heavy snow storm, no one seems to have noticed their departure.

Upon reaching the town it was immediately surrounded by details from the company of dragoons, who were so stationed that no one could possibly leave the city unperceived by them.

Just at daybreak, the Marshal with his deputies entered the town, and commenced the search of all those houses in which it was suspected the offenders might be concealed.

The house of Bishop JOHNSON was one of the first entered, but no one was found therein, except his two wives. Four of these wives are sisters, and the Bishop's own nieces, and he has besides these, two sisters out of one family, and also a mother and her daughter. This is polygamy with a vengeance. These wives received the Marshal with a very good grace, even joking with him in regard to the fruitlessness of his search.

After an hour's search, no trace [illegible] the persons sought for (some eleven in all) could be found. Not only those implicated had flown but also many others not before suspected. In fact nearly one half of the male inhabitants of Springville, where the PARRISHES were murdered, have run off and concealed themselves, leaving their numerous wives and families at the mercy of the "d——d Gentiles," and of a "licentious soldiery."

It being rumored that some of them were concealed up Hobbie Creek canon, the Marshal proceeded up the canon some eight miles, but not finding any trace of them, and the snow becoming very deep, so that it was difficulty that the horses could proceed, they returned to this city from their unsuccessful search.

On this same day (Tuesday) an express reached here from Governor CUMMING and distributed copies of the following so-styled Proclamation:

By Alfred Cumming, Governor, Utah Territory

A PROCLAMATION.

Whereas, One company of the United States Infantry, under the command of Captain HEATH, is now stationed around the Court-house at Provo, where the Hon. JOHN CRADLEBAUGH is now holding Court, and eight additional companies of infantry, one of artillery and one of cavalry, under command of Major PAUL, are stationed within sight of the Court-house; and,

Whereas, The presence of soldiers has a tendency, not only to terrify the inhabitants and disturb the peace of the Territory, but also to subvert the ends of justice, by causing the intimidation of witnesses and jurors; and,

Whereas, This movement of troops has been made without consultation with me, and, as I believe, is in opposition to both the letter and spirit of my instructions; and,

Whereas, General JOHNSTON, Commander of the Military Department of Utah, has refused my request that he would issue the necessary orders for the removal of the above-mentioned troops:

Now, therefore, I, ALFRED CUMMING, Governor of the Territory of Utah, do hereby publish this my solemn protest against this present military movement, and also against all movements of troops, incompatible with the letter and spirit of the annexed extract from the instructions received by me from Government for my guidance while Governor of the Territory of Utah.

In testimony whereof, I have hereunto set my hand, and caused the seal of the Territory to be affixed. Done at Great Salt Lake City, this 24th day of March, A. D. 1859, and of the Independence of the United States the eighty-third.

ALFRED CUMMING.

By the Governor:

JOHN HARTNETT, Secretary of State.

EXTRACT.—"It is your duty to take care that the laws are faithfully executed, and to maintain the peace and good order of the Territory, and also to support by your power and authority the civil officers in the performance of their duties. If these officers, when thus engaged are forcibly opposed, or have just reason to expect opposition, they have a right to call such portions of the posse comitatus to their aid as they may deem necessary. If circumstances should lead you to believe that the ordinary force at the disposal of such officers will be insufficient to overcome any resistance that may be reasonably anticipated, then you are authorized to call for such number of troops as the occasion may require, who will act as a posse comitatus, and while thus employed they will be under the direction of the proper civil officer, and act in conformity with the instructions you may give as the Chief Executive Magistrate of the Territory."

Gov. CUMMING has at last defined his position, unmistakably and unequivocally. He has set himself up in opposition to the efforts of the Judiciary to ferret out and punish those who have been guilty of those [illegible] crimes which have made the term Mormon almost synonymous with that of a treacherous murderer, and now endeavors, by a usurpation of power, to make the Judiciary subservient to the Executive in order to carry out the policy so earnestly advocated by the Mormons before the Peace Commissioners, viz: "let by-gones be by-gones."

The position now assumed by the Governor in regard to his authority over the United States troops in this: He contends that the United States Judges and Marshal have the right to make a requisition for troops, but he contends that after they have procured those troops, that he has the full control of them. It would be strange, if the Judges have the power to call for the assistance of troops, that when they have obtained that assistance, it should be by Executive dictation that it would become of benefit, or would be removed.

Immediately upon the receipt of the Proclamation here it was publicly reported that the Governor had issued orders through Lieutenant-General DANL. H. WELLS for the militia to prepare themselves and be in readiness to march and drive the troops from Provo by force, if they were not removed by order of Gen. JOHNSTON.

In Salt Lake City the band of the Nauvoo Legion serenaded the Governor the night after he issued his Proclamation.

The affidavit of GEORGE BANGERTOLOMEW, already given, and the following affidavit made by those of the witnesses for the prosecution who are now in the City, will show fully by whom witnesses and Jurors are intimidated:

Territory of Utah, Utah County, ss: We, Albert Parish, Henry Biggins, James O'Gannion, Leonard Phillips, Orin Farrish and James Gammell do solemnly swear that we are, and have been, for several years past, residents of the Territory of Utah, that we were summoned to appear as witnesses before the United States District Court for the second Judicial district of said Territory, which convened at the city of Provo, on the 8th March, 1859; that we possessed certain knowledge of various crimes which had been committed in the past two or three years and alleged in said district, on account of which said knowledge we had been so summoned; that on account of the particular action in or connection afterwards, of the said crimes, by the community in which said crimes were committed remaining, as we believe, from the authorities of the Mormon Church; we considered our lives and property in imminent danger from the Mormon community should we appear and testify to the facts within our knowledge, unless a portion of the United States troops should (as they have been) be stationed in the town of Provo, near enough the Court-room to guarantee safety, and that from the Mormon community we have received threats of intimidation in case we should divulge the facts concerning said crimes, which have come to our knowledge; and which threats we believe would have been carried into execution but for the timely aid afforded by the Commanding General in thus locating troops now in and near the city; and, further, we believe our lives to be in danger hereafterward, without military protection from the United States troops; and further deponent saith not.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 22th day of March, 1859. CHAS. E. SINCLAIR,
Associate Justice Supreme Court,
Utah Territory.

On Wednesday, the 30th inst., Judge CRADLEBAUGH, after the opening of his Court, made the following remarks in open Court in regard to the Governor's Proclamation:

"I have received a document from ALFRED CUMMING, Governor of this Territory, which in its reading purports to be a Proclamation, while in the body of the document it would seem to be a kind of protest, instead of being addressed to the General commanding the Department of Utah, it seems to be intended for the public at large. Taking the whole thing together, it seems to be designed to exasperate the people of this Territory against the troops, to obstruct the course of public justice, and to excite insubordination in the Army.

In this document, Governor CUMMING speaks of a company of United States Infantry being stationed around the Court-house, in which I am now holding a term of the District Court, and also of several additional companies of Infantry, one of Artillery, and one of Cavalry, being stationed in sight of the Court-house.

He also says that the presence of these soldiers has a tendency, not only to terrify the inhabitants and disturb the peace of the Territory, but also to subvert the ends of justice by causing the intimidation of witnesses and jurors. He says that this movement of troops has been made without consultation with him, and against the letter and spirit of his instructions.

In regard to his statement that troops are stationed around the Court-house at Provo, I have only to say that the Court-house is not free. They are stationed near the Court-house on each side of it.

The Court was then adjourned to [illegible] being stationed near the Court-house, as well as [illegible] miles distant.

In regard to the inhabitants being terrified by the presence of troops, it is proper to say that many of them are very much annoyed by their being here at this time, but those who seem to be stricken with terror have fled the country on account of crimes committed by them, and the fear of just punishment for their offences. Among them are to be found several of the jurors, Presidents of "stakes," Bishops, and also civil officers of the Territory.

It is, perhaps, proper to say that the Grand Jury was selected by the County Court, under a recent act of the Legislature of this Territory, which was signed and approved by Governor CUMMING, and that several notorious criminals were members of it.

That none but those who are conscious of guilt are under the influence of fear, is manifested by the fact that at all times, when the Court is in session, the Court-room is crowded by hundreds of citizens.

The assertion that witnesses and jurors are, or have been, intimidated by the small military detachments near the Court-house, is without foundation. While the real fact is that witnesses have been threatened and intimidated by the very inhabitants who are said to be so much terrified.

To such an extent has this been carried, that witnesses who appear and testify in behalf of the prosecution are compelled to seek safety under the protection of the troops that are here, many of them having signed a petition requesting that the troops shall not be removed, and representing that their security and safety depended upon their presence.

In regard to the statement that the troops are here without consultation with His Excellency, the Court has yet to learn that it is subservient to, and cannot act except under executive dictation.

Time was requested by the counsel for the defence, in order to procure their witnesses. They state, that the witnesses had been here, but had "stampeded." The Marshal has been after these witnesses several times already, but they have fled and are not to be found.

The Court expressed its entire willingness to adjourn the Court from day to day, and give the def ence every possible assistance in its power in procuring witnesses.

Mr. WILSON, the Territorial Attorney, made a statement of a great number of cases, which have come to his knowledge, and requested to know of the Court whether it would proceed with the investigation of them. The Judge replied that he would not examine any cases

NEWS OF THE DAY.

The Courtz steamship Africa, from Liverpool, April 14, arrived here evening. Her advices have been briefly anticipated by a dispatch from Queenstown at 8h. 30m. P.M. on the 13th. The news was but little. The Queen arrived at Osborne on the 12th. Parliament is in recess. Cabinet councils were held on the 11th and 12th. Nothing new for the prosecution—the witness for the defendant. But enough has been developed to show that the coal-trade through that channel must be very seriously interfered with for some time to come. Several of the mines are badly washed, and a heavy fine exercised at the point. It is impossible to estimate the whole damage until the result of the pumping is known.

The Havana Water Celebration in Brooklyn yesterday was a very grand affair, and passed off with great éclat. The proceedings during the day were long and imposing, and the fire-works in the evening, at extremely brilliant. It is said that 150,000 persons crossed the Brooklyn ferries yesterday, in addition to the usual travel.

The sales of Cotton yesterday, comprised 1,200 bales, including Uplands at 12c. ᵩ lb. Flour was unusually active, and prices advanced 10c. @ 50c. ᵩ bbl. Grain was less active. Pork was more freely offered, and purchased at easier prices. Lard was heavy. Beef was in good demand. A fair supply prevailed for domestic Naval Stores, and Linseed Oil. The movements in other branches of trade were restricted.

THE TAYLOR MURDER.—We have received and shall publish to-morrow morning a correspondence between Dr. Hiram Ketchum, Esq., and several others, and the Rev. R. R. Cook, concerning the financial management of the American Tract Society. Mr. Cook's letter is very long and relates principally to the accuracy and general character of what is known as the corrugated system of operation. The exposition is very full and will doubtless be read with satisfaction by all who are interested in the affairs of the Society.

Mr. TAYLOR was induced out of $3,800 in cash, and several pounds and several ounces of brass filings. The accused were taken before Justice DOWLING for examination in the case in the process before Justice WELSH, when sufficient testimony being obtained in custody to await the result.

In the Court of Oyer and Terminer, yesterday, Judge EMMET presiding, JOHN LARKIN and ELIJAH LYNCH were tried for the murder of Mr. P. BARKER, on the 13th of January, at No. 560 Pearl-street. There was but one witness for the prosecution—the mistress of the deceased, and after a few words in defence, the case was closed. Several of the claims were hardly mentioned, and the jury, in the case before mentioned, rendered a verdict of acquittal. All the parties were in the lowest rank of life, and the affair was the consequence of a disgraceful drunken squabble.

On Wednesday a skirmish took place between the laborers and the police, which resulted in the wounding of several of the laborers and one of the policemen. Further trouble was likely to occur.
